

Carolyn Bonner Eagan

Economic Development Director,
City of Bend

- City of Bend since 2012
- Education:
BS, Economics and Mathematics,
LaSalle University in Philadelphia.
Masters, Urban and Regional Planning,
Portland State University

Carolyn Eagan serves as the City of Bend's Economic Development Director. As director, she is responsible for the Bend Municipal Airport, Affordable Housing, Downtown, Urban Renewal, Parking Management, Tourism and the Business Advocacy program which includes regional economic development partnerships. Prior to joining the City, she was the Regional Economist for the Oregon Employment Department for Central and South Central Oregon where she was responsible for the unemployment rate for three and half years during the Great Recession.

Carolyn is a Philadelphia native who has lived in Oregon since 1999.

Being from Philadelphia, she is and always has been an advocate for the underdog, in fact, she was once voted Most Likely to Start a Revolution.

Her public sector service started early as a camp counselor for her township's Parks and Rec Department, but her favorite job was as a tennis court attendant.

She has a husband, daughter and black Labrador retriever who spend their days trying to keep up with her.